Gelli Plate printing is a form of art called monoprinting done on a rubbery plate made of gelatin. Dianne will lead you working with acrylic paints using different tools and stencils to create texture and patterns on the Gelli plate. You will then use a brayer, baren, the back of a spoon or your hand to transfer the image to your paper. You can print the same paper several times and create multiple layers of patterns and backgrounds. Completed prints can be a stand-alone work of art or be used as a starting point for other projects.

Dianne will have a few Gelli plates to use if you don't have one. Please reserve one in advance.
